William Trueheart Announced as Bryant's Sixth President

Drew Polinsky
Archway Staff Writer

Dr. William E. Trueheart, executive vice president of Bryant, was unanimously selected by the Board of Trustees to be the sixth president of Bryant College this past Monday.

The Presidential Search Committee, composed of faculty, administrators, alumni, trustees and students, evaluated more than 125 applicants nationwide. Besides Trueheart, the committee narrowed the decision down to four other finalists who were interviewed on the campus: Marvin Feldman, Stephen Feldman, Robert E. Holmes and Robert L. Taylor.

"We are confident that, in selecting Dr. Trueheart as our choice to lead Bryant College into and through the next decade, we have chosen wisely and well," said Hon. Bruce M. Selya, chairman of the board of trustees.

Selya, at the press conference this past Tuesday, referred to the President-elect as "one of the finest human beings we (the committee) have ever met."

"The search committee is plain and simply the best committee that I have ever worked with," stated Jonathan Farnum, vice chairman of the presidential search committee. "I have every hope and faith and reason to believe that we have identified the best of the best. And there were many excellent people to choose from."

Trueheart delivered his acceptance speech after Farnum introduced him. "During the past 13 years, under the leadership of Bill O'Hara, Bryant was really transformed. It went through a metamorphosis," Trueheart said. "I find no fault with where we are going and what we are going to do."

"As an institution, we've had a rich, conservative tradition but we've dared to be different at the right time. And I will continue in that tradition," he said.

"We will dare to be different while still keeping our anchor in the rich conservative tradition of Bryant College."

A local television reporter asked Trueheart as to what plans he had that were different from Bryant's conservative past. "The one new area that I would like to work closely with the faculty on is the area of business and government," he said.

Trueheart plans to teach a business/government course next year with Congressman Ron Machtley. He hopes that students will better understand government regulations and its' impact on the economy by taking this course.

On August 1 Trueheart, 46, will begin his term as the sixth President of Bryant College. Dr. William T. O'Hara will complete his 13 year reign (1976-1989) at the end of July. The four Presidents of Bryant that preceded O'Hara were: Harry F. Evarts (1970-1975), Schuyler D. Hoslett (1968-1969), E. Gardner Jacobs (1961-1968) and Henry L. Jacobs (1916-1961).

From 1981 to 1986, Trueheart served on the board of trustees and was also a vice-chairman of the committee.

Trueheart earned his Ed.D. in Education and Social Policy from Harvard University in 1979. Six years earlier, he graduated from Harvard with an M.P.A. For his undergraduate degree, Trueheart earned a B.A. in Political Science from the University of Connecticut.

"He is a renowned educator, a proven administrator, and the bearer of an enviable national reputation," said Selya. "But most of all, he is a humanist—a man of warmth, compassion, vision, and integrity."

Before filling the position of Executive Vice President at Bryant, three years ago, Trueheart was employed by Harvard University. He was the associate secretary to the Office of Governing Boards.

Trueheart served three posts at the University of Connecticut from 1966 to 1972. They include: Assistant Dean and Director of the Academic Advisory Center, Assistant to the President and Assistant Director of Admissions. He also served as an American Council on Education Fellow for a year.

Trueheart is married to Carol A. Word, a former executive for the World Bank in Washington, D.C.

TKE ROLLS KEG FOR ST. JUDE'S

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity began its annual "keg roll" for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital on Tuesday, April 11. This year's roll is being sponsored by Kirby's Pub, Subway, Bayside Promotion, and Beamers. As Father Norris indicated in the Benediction, events such as the "keg roll" help "desperate cases become less desperate because of these generous donations to research."

Thirty-eight brothers from TKE will take turns rolling the aluminum keg for 100 miles to raise money for the institute. The three-day roll began in the Unistructure Rotunda with a presentation from Lt. Governor Roger Begin's office as well as the presentation of an official "keg roll" shirt to Dr. O'Hara. "The students at Bryant College have done a lot to make the world a better place to live," assured O'Hara in his closing remarks.

The keg roll ends today at the Rotunda, after rolling over the back roads and city streets of Rhode Island. The roll is expected to cover a route between Bryant and the University of Rhode Island and back. The brothers plan to take turns rolling the keg in half-mile stretches, preceded by a lead car. Approximately 33 miles will be covered each day, traveling a loop from Smithfield to North Kingstown to Warwick to Providence to Smithfield.

Last year the brothers raised more than $3,000 for St. Jude's Hospital and hope to accomplish at least that this year.

Spring Weekend Wristbands are on sale now until April 29th at the Info Desk for $3.00. One per guest per Bryant Student.

Guests will not be permitted past the security Booth without a wristband. Each guest will be required to wear a Spring Weekend Wristband at all times. All alumni will be considered a guest and will be required to have a Spring Weekend Wristband purchased by a current Bryant Student. A valid Bryant Student ID is required to purchase Wristbands.

For Convenience Sake

Consider how far away the nearest convenience store is. What does a townhouse resident, without a car, do when he/she runs out of butter? Do without? Borrow from a neighbor? Run down to the convenience store in the utility room?

Now don't get too excited. 7-11 is not moving onto the campus. However, Brycol is discussing the idea of establishing some type of convenience store in the townhouse utility room. What would this mean for students?

There are advantages and disadvantages. Obviously, there is convenience due to proximity. The initial capital outlays would be a definite disadvantage. The cost of renovating the utility room would be a significant cost. Purchasing merchandise and paying employees would be other costs to consider. Can Brycol order large enough volumes of merchandise to earn discount rates?

A survey was distributed recently to seniors. 99% of the respondents answered "yes" to the question, "would you be happy if a full-service convenience were opened in the townhouse utility room." This seems to indicate that there is interest among seniors. Maybe Brycol should survey underclassmen to inquire about their opinions.

Can Brycol justify the cost? There is a very good possibility that they will lose money during the first year (and maybe in following years). This is a matter of comparing benefits to costs. Another question involves the formal procedure necessary to establish such a store. Could such an establishment survive (and flourish)?

A store would provide managerial experience for students. Because it would be student run, in theory, costs would be kept down. Students realize that many of their fellow students have restricted budgets. This store would be in competition with the bookstore. They have a monopoly on campus, especially for emergency items such as aspirin, cold medicine, Kleenex, etc. This monopoly enables them to charge excessive prices. Brycol might try to avoid the markups that the bookstore and nearby stores charge.

Survey respondents suggested several items they would like to see offered, including microwave products, frozen foods, and deli foods.

Again, this is just an idea in the discussion stage. A great deal of work is needed before anything definite comes about. Brycol needs input from faculty and administration, and especially from students. After all, this is something that would have a direct influence of the quality of student life.

Another Answer to Apathy

To the Editor:

Education in the academic arena isn't the only aspect of college which is experienced. What is done outside the classroom is just as important. The question here at Bryant is: Are we receiving a quality education outside the classroom to enhance our appreciation of the college? I believe the answer to this question is very complex, but one that should be asked.

At Bryant, we are very unique. The situation that exists at Bryant is that the minority of students are working vigorously to provide avenues for student life outside the classroom, however, the majority of students are very lazy towards their efforts. The Student Senate, SPB, The Archway, GLC, and the other organizations should be awarded for their efforts, however, no award could supplement the apathy of the student body. This apathy attacks the core of the student organizations and creates a great amount of anxiety and hesitation to bring about any kind of change at Bryant.

The solution to this very problem is simple. We — Bryant College Students — must recognize that we are Bryant College Students!! We must not take a back seat to the events that take place at our college. Don't be a passive observer, voice your opinions, and bring them to the correct ears. Get involved in the various student organizations like SPB. Stake a claim in Bryant that goes beyond the classroom, and show some interest in Bryant. The rewards to such a claim will be unbelievable. If you agree with this opinion or even disagree, let me know.

April Fool's No Joke

To the Editor:

Having been a journalist for several years, I support the responsibility of newspaper writers to tell it as they see it when reporting something that is important to their constituency, and I respect the Archway editors for taking on controversial issues. I also have no problem with a bit of mostly good-natured humor in an April Fool's Day issue. However, I feel that this year's issue went past that line into cruelty that served no purpose other than to injure. I hope student journalists will learn to weigh the damage/benefit ratio of their writing and will not feel a need to abandon all compassion.

Melissa Barnes

Editors Strike Back

To Melissa Barnes and all those who were offended:

The Archway published its' annual April Fools edition - The Apathyway on March 31st.

The purpose of this issue is to provide the Bryant Community with humor and satire. Although an incredible amount of time and effort went into producing The Apathyway, the articles and advertisements directed at certain individuals should not be taken to heart because of humorous intent.

If certain individuals can't take a joke, then perhaps something is wrong. These points wouldn't have been brought up, if there weren't any real problems.

The April Fools issue is the only time of the year in which any member of the Bryant Community (not just The Archway Staff) can express their satirical opinions. We have and will continue to print the community's idea and opinions. After all, The Apathyway is Bryant's newspaper.

Whether it be the joke or regular, the media is a powerful tool. In the majority of the editorials published, action was taken by some party to alter the existing criteria.

The people offended should take a step backwards and say, "maybe there is something wrong." After all there is a purpose behind every article and advertisement.

More Accreditation Confusion

To the Bryant Community:

Many professors at Bryant are confused by the attack on Ph.D.'s and research by the "BFF (Accreditation, part IV April 8.) Is it too much to ask for a clarification of this point:

Are Ph.D.'s and research respected at Bryant? Or are they not?

Bryant Students Honored by NE Scholarship Committee

by Tom Hoffman

The Career Expo Planning Committee (CEPC), a 17-year-old nonprofit organization which provides scholarships to minority students in New England, awarded three of its prestigious Career Expo Scholarships to Bryant College students. The three students receiving the awards, Jose Gonzalez, Nhuguyinh "Queenie" Thuy Phan, and Lenore "Lenny" C. Uddyback described the award as "an honor" to both themselves and to Bryant.

The CEPC scholarships were awarded, this February, to junior and senior applicants from accredited four year New England colleges and universities on the basis of their high academic achievement as well as personal commitment to positive change for "people of color."

Bryant students have a good reputation going into the award selection process. Bryant College received 3 CEPC awards this year while only Harvard received more. Boston University, Clark, Emerson, Gordon, MIT, Northeastern, Smith, and Tufts were among the schools that were awarded one scholarship each from the CEPC for 1989.

As reported in the Bryant Review, the award recipients from Bryant all have eminent, specific career plans. Gonzalez, a business communications major, plans to go on to law school. Phan, an accounting major who came to the U.S. from Vietnam when she was 14, plans to become a CPA, and Uddyback, also a business communications major, plans to work toward an MBA degree and then pursue a career in sales or public relations.

When asked about the award, Jose Gonzalez, a second year CEPC award winner said that it was an honor for him because the award is based not only on academics, but also on community and social activities. Jose said that it was a particular honor for Bryant College this year since Bryant won three CEPC scholarships. Queenie commented that she felt that her activities in Outward Bound, her tutoring of high school students, and her exemplary academic performance at Bryant even as English became her second language, all contributed to her selection for the scholarship. To Lenny, community involvement and helping those around her were always second nature. Lenny was pleased that all her hard work was recognized by CEPC.

Roberta Hysell, Bryant's director of minority and international student services, was also acknowledged at the scholarship ceremony with a certificate "in recognition of your undying commitment to our goal of creating professional career opportunities for people of color." Roberta was unavailable for comment, but those who know her are sincerely appreciative of the efforts Roberta makes toward advancing the opportunities for minority student on campus.

According to Fred Kenny, Director of Financial Aid, scholarships are awarded at Bryant at the rate of approximately $250,000 per year. Part of Bryant's funds come from a $200,000 endowment fund that yields about six percent yearly to be awarded to students.

Evelyn Dvorak, director of Foundation Relations, reported that in addition to a $150,000 endowment secured from the Starr Foundation in New York, a major effort is being made to increase the endowment for minority students. The Development office is planning fund raising efforts which should significantly increase the amount of money available to minority students at Bryant in the future.

Other scholarships that seem to be on the rise are athletic scholarships. Currently at Bryant, money equalling full tuition, room and board is awarded every year for ten women and twelve men who play basketball in the Division II, North East Ten Conference. An Athletic Advisory Board made up of students, administrators, faculty and club sport representatives, is being formed to look at the expansion of the athletic department. "Let's play football!" But that's another story.

News Briefs:

GORBACHEV CRITICAL OF BUSH: Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev told Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Thursday that the delays by President Bush in developing a policy toward the Soviet Union is threatening relations between the 2 superpowers. Soviet spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said that continuity is the name of the game - time has its limits. The Washington Post reports Friday.

SOVIET SUB SINKS: The Soviet "Mike" class submarine that exploded and sank Friday near Norway will probably not be recovered. The Glomar Explorer, a U.S. ship, is the only vessel capable of lifting the sub, and the Soviets are unlikely to ask for U.S. help, says naval author Norman Polmar. (From the USA TODAY News section.) Although there were 2 nuclear reactors and 2 nuclear-tipped torpedoes on board the Soviet sub that sank in 4,500 feet of water off Norway Friday, danger of radiation is low. 6 nuclear subs, including the U.S. Navy's Thresher, have sunk and none are emitting radiation, says naval author Norman Polmar. 27 of the 69 crew members on board survived Friday's accident.

BUSH MENTIONED IN DOCUMENTS: Oliver North, fighting to prove his case, used classified documents Thursday to make President Bush a player in the secret network to arm the Nicaraguan Contras. Bush, who has insisted he had little to do with the Iran-Contra affair, is mentioned repeatedly in a 42-page digest of classified documents detailing Reagan administration efforts to aid the Nicaraguan Contras.

UEBERROTH BUYS EASTERN: Former Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth announced his deal to buy Eastern Airlines on Thursday. He is going to have a tough time reclaiming Eastern's turf. While Eastern has been operating about 10% of its flights because of the 5-week-old machinists' strike, other airlines filled the void.

PRO-CHOICE ADVOCATES MARCH: Leaders of yesterday's pro-choice march hope the Supreme Court won't be able to ignore the voices of the estimated 300,000 people who attended. Marchers worry the court will return the USA to the days when abortion was illegal in many states. Anti-abortion forces rallied too. The court hears arguments April 26 in a Missouri case in which Wade vs. Roe could be overturned.

ECONOMY SLOWING DOWN: Evidence shows the economy is slowing down. Everywhere you look there are signs that the economy hit a critical turning point in February and swerved onto a path of slower growth: Housing construction has slumped, car sales are weak and job growth is slowing. Friday's unemployment report, which showed the jobless rate slipped to 5% in March, doesn't alter the picture.

GASOLINE PRICES RISE: A rise in gasoline prices over the past 2 weeks is blamed in part on the Valdez, Alaska, oil spill. AAA found the average cost of self-serve regular gas hit $1.115 per gallon, up 12 cents since Easter and the highest price since August 1987. 2 other factors are, according to AAA, the recent increase in crude oil prices and a new EPA regulation tightening summer-grade fuel requirements.

Peterman says he expects enrollment in the program to double to 300 within the next two years, (the current enrollment is 140). If the program is successful, Peterman hopes to add new courses (such as service management) and new faculty.

On the other hand, Professor Camper said he expects the college to lose students in the long run. Potential students in hospitality management will look at other schools, he predicts.

Still, Peterman is very optimistic about the new Hospitality Marketing program. Bryant will be the first college in the nation with a HM program. Peterman says he expects the hospitality industry to be very receptive. The college is making the best possible decision, Peterman says.

Schiavo Named Assistant Director of Residence Life

by Travis Niles Gray

Nadine Schiavo, current resident director of dormitory 15, has been named the Assistant Director of Residence Life, replacing Robert E. Sloss, who was named the Director of Residence Life. Schiavo, the Resident director of dormitory 15 since August of 1986, assumed the position effective April 1, 1989. Before coming to Bryant, Schiavo was a Resident Director at the University of Connecticut. Schiavo received her bachelor's and master's degree's from the University of Connecticut. A replacement for her Resident Director position has not been announced.

Hospitality Marketing ?

by Travis Niles Gray

As the saying goes, necessity is the mother of invention. It certainly appears to be in the recent decision to move the Hotel and Institutional Management program out of the management department and into the marketing department as a new concentration, Hospitality Marketing.

The necessities behind the change are many. They range from a study of Bryant's current program to AACSB accreditation to scarce faculty in hospitality field.

Concern about the future viability of Bryant's Hotel and Institutional Management program prompted the college to send Dr. William Haas, a professor of philosophy and ethics at Bryant, to two universities with extensive hospitality programs — Cornell University and Michigan State University. (Dr. Haas was chosen for the study due to his knowledge in the area of reviewing college programs and introducing new programs. Haas served as Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs for the Massachusetts state college system).

After interviewing several officials at these colleges, Dr. Haas found that Bryant had neither the size nor the resources to compete with large universities. Officials at both schools recommended dropping the Hotel and Institutional Management (HIM) program. Michigan State suggested Bryant try a Hospitality Marketing (HM) track within the marketing program. This was ultimately Dr. Haas's recommendation to the school.

The changeover also comes as a response to AACSB accreditation. To meet AACSB requirements, the program had to be modified or dropped, according to Professor Eugene Peterman, coordinator of Bryant's current HIM program.

Staffing was the third problem. Nationwide a faculty shortage exists for PhD's in the area of tourism or hospitality, Peterman explains. Of the few available last year, most were hired by the hospitality industry, Peterman says.

In addition to not being able to hire appropriate hospitality management faculty, Bryant is losing Professor Richard Wentzel at the end of this year.

A current professor in the HIM program, Professor Wallace Camper said the college is attempting to focus on an important part of the hospitality industry. However, Camper does not endorse the switch completely. The college is limiting itself by not offering the management aspect of hospitality, he says.

However, Haas and Peterman feel that changing to a hospitality track is the best alternative to dropping the program. Altogether, Peterman sees the change as basically more economical for the college, while at the same time filling a "niche" in the market. The college does not have the resources to compete with major universities, Peterman says. Also, he continues, the new program will alleviate pressure to hire new faculty.

Students in the program will be marketing majors with a hospitality track. Therefore, they will complete the requirements of the marketing programs in addition to two courses for the new track, Marketing for the Food Service Industry, and Tourism and Leisure Marketing.

Current freshmen and sophomore have the option of continuing with the HIM program or switching to the HM track. Juniors and seniors will not be affected by the change. Peterman stresses that as long as one current HIM student wishes to remain in the program, the program will continue until that student graduates.

Incoming freshmen are being allowed to choose the HIM program; however they will be the last class allowed to major in HIM Peterman says.

Dealing With the Family

Stephanie Brush
Washington Post Writers Group

You'll probably be reading this soon in "Ripley's Believe It Or Not": I went to a family reunion and actually enjoyed it.

The original role of family reunions was for people to enjoy themselves. But recently it's been seen as a much more chic, healthy approach to express a feeling of numbing, existential dread. Particularly if you are a devotee of "thirtysomething."

If you tell your friends, "I had nightmares for a solid week that my entire family drove the station wagon off a cliff and exploded in flames, and we all shattered into tiny bits," they nod at you wisely.

"That's good," they say. "That means your 'expectations' are not too high."

From what I gather, family "expectations" should be very much like cholesterol: You gain lots of approval from health professionals if you maintain "low levels" of it.

My friend Carol, a professional therapist, took me into a corner the week before my sister's wedding and said, grimly: "Are you all right? Do you think you're going to make it? Do you think you'll need to be medicated?"

"This is a WEDDING!" I said. "Am I missing something, or is this supposed to include burying somebody?" But the rule seems to be that if you treat weddings, funerals, Christmas and Easter as identical emotional traumas, you'll never feel terribly great, but neither will you feel that anybody let you down.

From the age of about 18 on, therefore, your life becomes a sort of giant Limbo Party, and you keep trying to contort yourself to squeeze under the increasingly lowered expectations until you crack your head open, and they bring you a stretcher.

The truth is, I expect MORE from my family as the years go on, because whatever way they were five years ago, they are going to be that much more that way today. The difference between childhood and adulthood is the difference between getting to see a grand opera in rehearsal, and getting to see the actual performance.

The fact that my sister and I informally want to kill each other has become the stuff of family myth, ever since the time, as small children, we arrived home separately from the local swimming pool. "Where's your sister?" they asked me.

"At the bottom of the pool," I said, matter-of-factly. Then five minutes later, they asked my sister the same question about me, and she said, "I drowned her."

My sister and I still think of this incident warmly, because it was the first moment we realized our minds operated alike, and that we were joined in some kind of cosmic way.

Where we go wrong with our families is in expecting them to behave like "regular" people, rather than being what they are: increasingly fascinating fictional characters, which, for some reason, we have a higher tolerance. My own familial roster includes Mr. Micawber from "David Copperfield," the Evil Queen from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the Invisible Man and the Pillsbury Doughboy. But in fiction, unlike at family reunions, these people never get to meet and dance with each other.

I'm struck that we almost never see the word "family" mentioned in the media anymore without the words "crisis" or "dysfunction" following it. And politicians with nothing else to offer invoke it as a substitute for a true plan-of-action: "In the weeks to come, we will bring drug kingpins to their knees by showing them photographs of people's families. Kodak will end the drug crisis."

I do not choose to be with my family because it's a political act. I choose to be with my family because they drive me crazy. Relatives driving you crazy is God's way of telling you how much you'll miss them when they're gone. DNA is the Thumbscrew Machine of the Gods. It tightens as you get older; it only makes you scream louder.

But as you get in the car to leave for church, or the American Legion hall, you always say—and you mean it—"You know, we never do this often enough."

Grease

Robyn C. Brown
Archway Staff Writer

Last semester, the Bryant Player's production was "THE BUTLER DID IT." This semester, the production is set in the 50's with the bobby socks, the loafers, the leather clad, dark blue jeans and the greased back hair: the era of GREASE!! Yes, GREASE is back!! The Bryant Players are working harder than ever to make this production the real thing.

The songs, coming from the Broadway musical, include "Greased Lightning" and "Shakin' at the High School Hop," just to name a few. The play is bound to thrill everyone with the talented Bryant Players singing, dancing and cruising their way into your hearts. The show is scheduled for April 21st and 22nd at 8:00 p.m. and April 23rd at 2:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. Be sure not to miss this one, tickets are sure to go fast.

WJMF D.J. and host, Mike Cain, held his own with the ever-witty and intellectually spellbinding Keeley. Many of the questions came from the students who phoned-in. By popular demand, WJMF will be rebroadcasting "The Other Side of Patrick Keeley" (see schedule of broadcasts).

The weekly program already has three special editions planned. Two will be aired on Thursday nights in April, while a third will be on a Friday afternoon. "The Other Side" with faculty music-trivia whiz Rick Smith will be from 2 to 4 p.m. on Friday, April 21st. Rick Smith will go head-to-head with WJMF's own Casey Kasem, Super Dave, in what can only be described as a radio "Jeopardy" game.

Due to an unfortunate transmitter failure, the second week of "The Other Side" with Jeff Wright had to be postponed. Last night, "The Other Side of Richard Spivack" aired successfully. If you haven't heard the latest craze on the Bryant campus yet, it's "The Other Side" on WJMF!

Tune in to hear what you're missing!

WJMF Presents "The Other Side" Spring 1989 Schedule

April 20 - Gregg Carter	7 p.m.	Thursday
April 21 - Rick Smith	2 p.m.	Friday
April 24 - Patrick Keeley (rebroadcast)	7 p.m.	Monday
April 26 - Bill Hill	7 p.m.	Wednesday
April 27 - Jeff Wright	7 p.m.	Thursday

Meet the Senate

by Nicole Korzun
Student Senate Secretary

An open talk session called "Meet the Senate," has been set for Tuesday April 18, from 11 AM-2PM in the Bryant Center Commons. This session is similar to Dr. O'Hara's "Meet the Prez," which gives the Bryant Community the chance to meet and talk with the 1989-1990 Student Senate executive council and senators.

According to Harry Franks, the new Senate President, "The senate hopes to involve more students in the awareness of campus activities and policies and would like to hear students opinions." The executive council feels that the opportunity gives students the chance to become better informed about topics such as food operations, faculty relations with students, school policies and programs run by Senate-UCB and Parents' Weekend.

The Senate is encouraging students to stop by to voice their concerns, suggestions, or complaints. This talk session will be informal and can include any topic. The Student Senate is here to represent the students and the only way that can occur to the best extent possible is through the involvement of the students.

MUD, SWEAT AND TEARS

by Jay Fehan, S.A.A. President

The Student Alumni Association is gearing up for the seventh annual Ooozball competition which will be held on May 7, 1989. For those of you who are not familiar with the event, Ooozball is a volleyball in the mud tournament with all proceeds donated to the Society for Young Victims (Missing Children).

Approximately thirteen teams comprised of Bryant students will be competing in a single elimination tournament format against one corporate team from Fore Court Tennis Club and two teams from other colleges. Johnson and Wales University and the University of Rhode Island will be sending their Student Alumni Association teams to play.

The two teams that make it to the semi-finals will receive free T-shirts. The winning team will receive Ooozball boxer shorts and will have their team name inscribed on the Ooozball trophy displayed in the MAC.

Ooozball boxer shorts and T-shirts will be sold in the Bryant Center on April 24-26 from 10 a.m.—2 p.m. The boxer shorts will be $8 and the T-shirts $10.

Any additional contributions for the Society for Young Victims are welcomed and can be submitted to the Student Alumni Association at Box 5. We at S.A.A. hope everyone will come out to the Ooozball pit at 10 a.m. on May 7th to cheer the team on and join in on the fun.

"THE OTHER SIDE" Exposes Faculty on WJMF

by Michael Ristelli

On March 29th, WJMF unveiled its latest, and possibly greatest, special programming idea, "The Other Side." Every Wednesday night at 7 p.m., a different Bryant faculty member is ushered up to the WJMF on-air studio. For the next hour, the faculty member is the center of attention on this music/talk show.

The idea was conceived to bring the Bryant faculty and students together on a different level. Students tuning into WJMF for the one-hour program are treated to a personal interview of the faculty member as well as a sample of his/her favorite music. Questions for the professor can be phoned-in during the show.

The focus of the show is to let students get to know "the other side" of a professor. Topics frequently touched upon include high school or college memories, hobbies and interests away from Bryant, and of course, musical preference.

The first edition of the special was "The Other Side of Patrick Keeley" aired on March 29, 1989.

Annie Bounces Back

Michael Calleia
Archway Staff Writer

Do you remember your first time? It was so good. You'll never forget it. That very first piece of that stuff the came in a black bag.

The cheese Mmm... Then the taste of the popcorn, mixed with the cheese. You wanted to take a drink. It made you thirsty, but you could not stop. You were hooked.

They called it the ultimate taste bud sensation- "Smartfood".

That was then. And if your ready to go yourself one better, there's "Annie's All Natural Popcorn & Real Wisconsin Cheddar Cheese."

Annie is the inventor of "Smartfood". And after a few years of remarkable success Annie and her husband were moved from kitchen to boardroom. In the process "Smartfood" dropped Annie and her husband from the table of organization and dropped Annie's name from the package.

Today "Smartfood" is owned by Frito-Lay (a subsidiary of Pepsico).

Well Annie's not one to leave quietly. In March, backed with her husband and three friends, Annie introduced another new popcorn to New England. The new package looks remarkably like "Smartfood" except it comes in bright green rather than black, and replaces advertising with information about recycling. The package also features Annie's pet rabbit and the new company's mascot, Bernie.

Annie's new popcorn has a slightly stronger flavor than "Smartfood". But, it is still made and cheese business. A market currently held by Kraft, who alone plans to spend $1 dollars on advertising this year.

"Annie's Shells & Real Cheddar" comes with a guarantee of satisfaction for a full refund. This product is also all natural and features a fresher taste than the brands with artificial ingredients.

Having only to boil the shells and add the cheese, which comes in a packet, to milk and butter. This product is perfect food for the dorm.

Annie's reputation is the base marketing tool for this product. The plan to use of word of mouth to promote the new product, is the same as that used to promote "Smartfood".

It's apparently working. The distributors plan is to move from central Connecticut outward. Annie's products are flying off the shelves faster than stores can stock them. And R.I. distributors are making plans to stock them as soon as possible.

So once again Annie and her small band is taking on the industry giants. But won't it be fun to watch the battle while sitting back munching on Annie's new popcorn and macaroni and cheese.

Annie and her new popcorn with all natural ingredients and no preservatives. The new popcorn costs the same as "Smartfood".

But Annie and her rabbit, Bernie, are not going to stop at taking on Frito-Lay. They are also ready to challenge Kraft with a new venture. Annie is moving into the macaroni

SOME DAYS HER OFFICE DOUBLES AS A CLOTHING BANK.

That's because Mercy Center in Asbury Park is for many the last stop on the poverty express. In serving the poor of this resort town, Carol Ann Henry has to feed the hungry with one hand and summon the richly endowed with the other.

She arrived here after teaching for 12 years, including several in an inner-city school, and after finding yet another way of expressing her concern for the poor.

In a community of contrasts—wealth and poverty, education and ignorance—she and two other sisters opened a

With donated food, clothing and furniture, and the generosity of grant monies she helps secure, Carol Ann makes the vow of mercy her daily prayer.

Student Insurance a "Must" on Some Campuses

By MICHAEL ALLSOP
The Daily Utah Chronicle Staff Writer
Special to Gannett News Service

In an attempt to reduce the increasing costs of student health insurance, many U.S. colleges and universities require students to show proof of insurance before they enroll in school.

Next fall, students at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, will be required to show proof of medical insurance before enrolling. BYU officials said they are taking this action to prevent students from incurring uninsured medical expenses.

The University of Utah is one of hundreds of schools currently weighing out the pros and cons of the bill. Joan Rawlins, administrative officer for the Student Health Center at Utah, said the main reason the university is considering mandatory student insurance is because it would decrease the premium costs of university student insurance.

Due to an estimated 9.9 percent increase in medical costs and a recently passed federal law that required student insurance policies to provide maternity benefits for students' spouses, insurance providers are increasing their premium costs.

Insurance companies, expecting many students and spouses to take advantage of these maternity benefits, will increase insurance premiums to cover these costs.

"The insurance companies are looking at the dependent-spouses clause as high risk," Rawlins said, because of the increase in students using it.

"And maternity charges are increasing so much anyway because of the liability factors of maternity coverage," she said. This also adds to the high-risk factor of the new clause.

Another major reason why student insurance costs are increasing at institutions such as the University of Utah is because so few students are covered by university insurance.

Only 14 percent of University of Utah students are insured by university insurance. The remaining 86 percent are either insured under personal and family policies or not insured at all.

"What we are looking at is a low population of people buying student insurance, and yet this year we have more claims, so those that are buying it are using it more," Rawlins said.

Rawlins said the University of Utah has three options regarding student insurance rates in the future. The university can do nothing, and students will pay the high premium rates; the university can keep premium rates relatively the same by reducing policy benefits; or the university can decrease premium costs by requiring mandatory student insurance.

"By making student insurance mandatory, students who have no insurance whatsoever must pick up some form of insurance. And what that does is increase the numbers purchasing university insurance," Rawlins said.

Dealing With Different Cultures

by Constance Cameron of the Hodgson Memorial Library Staff

The Global Edge: How Your Company Can Win in the International Marketplace by consultant Sondra Snowden contains an illuminating amount of detail about business etiquette in twenty-five countries. Shelved HF 5387 .S59. The author who is founder and executive director of the International Protocol Officers Association has systemized the format for her country profiles. Each business brief begins with a cultural overview. A general comment on potential business opportunities and suggestions for initiating contact follows. The larger portion of each country segment is concerned with business protocol and includes captions such as rank and status, forms of address, business dress, gift-giving and communication styles. Guidelines for conducting negotiations are also included in each unit.

The library staff is always on the look-out for helpful treatments on differing cultures, since international marketing, management, economics and communications students find this portion of their term projects so elusive. Book stack #32 on the lower level, for example yielded the following titles:

Do's and Taboos Around the World edited by Roger E. Axtell. Shelved HF 5387 .D66 1985b. Covers some of the same ground as Global Edge, but illustrates with cartoons some taboos about hand gestures, body language and American jargon.

Korean Etiquette & Ethics in Business by Boye De Mente. Shelved HF 6387 .D385 1988. The author's intent is to reveal a more "penetrating analysis of the morals and values that shape the Korean business personality."

Interstate Commerce by Clyde

Burleson. Shelved HF 5387 .B856 1987. A popular account of the American regional manners, attitudes and styles of doing business intended both for the foreigner and business person seeking to understand nine distinct zones within the United States.

Traditionally, library staff members have offered international business students a handout which inventories circulating books in two separate series. The "country study" books published by the American University have detailed chapters on cultural aspects. The second series entitled "Doing Business in..." is published by Price Waterhouse provides a more succinct treatment of the culture of many international trading partners. If you have located other volumes containing differentiated cultural characteristics, please feel free to share your discoveries with the reference staff and, subsequently, future students!

Brycol Byline

by Jennifer Hofman
Chairman of the Board

This is a time for congratulations!!!

The Board of Directors would like to extend our warmest congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. William Truchart for becoming Bryant's new first family. We are very confident that they were the best choice for the position, and look forward to working with them.

Jeff "Bubba" Green has recently taken over as General Manager of the Country Comfort. The good times have been getting much better up at the Comfort, and Jeff has been putting a lot of effort to make sure they keep improving. Good Luck, Jeff.

We would also like to announce the election of six new members to our Board of Directors. The quality of the applicants was very high this spring, and the decision of whom to elect was very difficult. These new members are: Mary Bujnowski, Keri Coggins, Cliff Guest, Karen Lessard, Kim Richards, and Sandy Zinck.

These new people will replace our graduating seniors, who are: Mike Shaw, Mike Smolkis, Matt Coggins, Tom Cotreau, Steve Lippens, and Cheryl Bridgeman. They have all put a lot of time into Brycol, and we would like them to graduate knowing that Brycol and the campus deeply appreciate the time that they have spent in improving the quality of campus life.

On a personal note, Brycol would like to thank Dr. O'Hara for the support he has shown us during his thirteen years as president. He originally befriended our very first board members and has continued to be a trusted ally since that time. We will sincerely miss him in the years to come.

The Country Comfort will be closed for alcohol on Friday and Saturday of Spring Weekend. It will be open for food delivery and walk up service during regular hours.

PARKING POLICY

Please be advised that as of April 20, 1989, the only section of the Commuter Lot where overnight parking will be allowed is in section C-3 (adjacent to the athletic fields). Overnight parking shall constitute the hours between 12:00 midnight and 6:00 a.m.

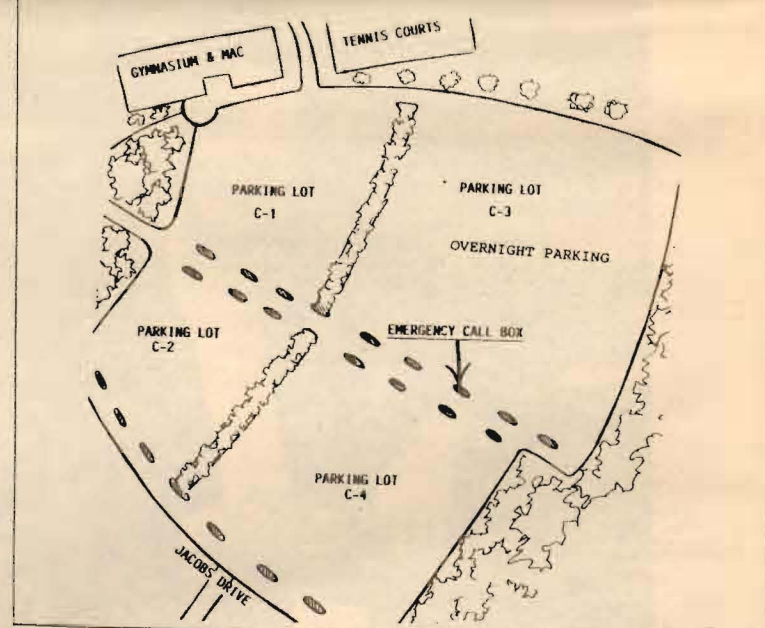

This new policy is necessary to accommodate present and future needs of the Bryant community and its visitors. Parking section C-3 is the only section of the Commuter Lot large enough to accommodate the 600 plus resident student vehicles that presently park overnight in the Commuter Lot. The present policy allows vehicles to park sporadically over the entire Commuter Lot causing a hazard for snow removal and sanding during inclement weather conditions.

Parking section C-3 will also have a 24-hour camera surveillance system and an emergency call box allowing for transportation to other campus locations during the hours of darkness or during inclement weather.

If any member of the Bryant community has a special need for overnight parking in other sections of the Commuter Lot, please contact Public Safety.

The emergency call box is located at the edge of the Commuter Lot and will be identified at night by a blue light. Once the button on the call box is activated, it sends an alarm to Public Safety who in turn will dispatch a mobile unit to investigate. The emergency call box also provides 2-way communication between the caller and the Public Safety Office in the event a student would like an escort to his or her dorm. We hope that the Bryant community will utilize this new communication system whenever our assistance is needed.

Your cooperation is appreciated.

Part of Bryant College's Learning for Leadership program is an intensive examination of leadership from a multidisciplinary perspective.

HOW DO I LEARN ABOUT LEADERS AND LEADERSHIP?

A variety of active learning techniques are employed to stimulate your leadership development including:
class exercises: Experience how leadership style affects group productivity.

Learn how to apply your class activities to your campus employment leadership responsibilities.

case studies: How was Martin Luther King able to so effectively manage internal & external conflict?

issue debates: Did Adolph Hitler believe he was ethical?

written assignments:

What have you learned from your leadership successes and failures?

class lectures/discussion: Do men and women leaders differ?

What are the characteristics of a peak performing leader?

Can you become one?

What are the lessons for leadership from the past? Are we still making the same mistakes?

exams: Apply what you have learned throughout the semester. How might what you have learned help you ten years from now?

You also choose a recognized leader as your focus throughout the semester. As we discuss the various leadership issues, you can share the perspective of your chosen leader. Students have previously chosen such leaders as:

Napoleon	Jeanne Kirkpatrick	Donald Trump
Winston Churchill	Red Auerbach	George S. Patton
Margaret Thatcher	Lee Iaccoca	Benito Mussolini
Al Copone	Gandhi	Charles Manson
Abraham Lincoln	J.P. Morgan	King Hussein of Jordan

The joint sharing of leadership experiences, self-assessment, & your personal growth are the key components to all our activities. The instructional aim is to have you experience success and to discover that both the study and exercise of leadership is fun, exciting, and demanding endeavor.

WHAT IS THE LEADERSHIP SPEAKERS FORUM?

As a special part of the Learning for Leadership program, successful leadership practitioners and prominent scholars are invited on campus as "a guest leader for the day." The Forum enables you to informally interact with the guest leaders. Past participants have included:

Lillian Katz, founder of the Lillian Vernon Corporation
John Clemens, co-author of The Classic Touch: Lessons In Leadership From Homer to Hemingway (class text).

Walter Ulmer, President of the Center for Creative Leadership.

Who would you like to meet in the Fall?

With housing registration completed, students' thoughts turn to the latest addition to the Bryant campus, Dorm 16.

Dorm 16, scheduled to house just over three hundred Bryant students and the new Health Services Center is on schedule for completion. Many of the suites are at the stage of construction where they are being painted, closets are being installed, and bathrooms are being tiled.

Each floor in Dorm 16 will contain eight suites, four on each side of the building. Each suite consists of four bedrooms, measuring approximately ten feet by twenty feet, a bathroom with two showers and two sinks, and a living room.

The suite consists of a staggered hallway leading into the common living room. Three of the four bedrooms, the bathroom, and the entrance to the suite are all adjacent to this hallway. The fourth bedroom is adjacent to the common living room. The suites are connected to a central hallway on each floor.

The new main walkway between the Senior townhouses and the Bryant Center will pass directly in front of Dorm 16.

An entrance into a suite. Doors to three of the bedrooms are facing the entrance. The bathroom door is on the left.

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. I'm also getting another $5,000 for tuition and books, thanks to the New GI Bill.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back—up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000—or more—for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

Hi!!! Anyone that's planning on being here this weekend, please stop by and say hello to Smoothie and Lib - they've been whining for the last week that everyone is leaving them! Animal, that's a great imitation of The Hulk! You do that so well! Elmer definitely deserved her stupidity award, do you really think E-jekt slams WYB's head against the wall like that???

On Friday, some of the sisters took a road trip to Bentley - what a blast! Oscar was really out of it the whole trip, not that she ever had it to begin with. How many Alpha Phis can you fit into an elevator? A lot!! No Oscar, not this floor, not unless you want to walk the rest of the way down. On the way back, we all lost Mario as she blew everyone by. There seemed to be a lot of problems at Mr. V's later on, from the bathroom to Cranberry's glasses. Hurry up, Lib's butt is getting wet!!

Saturday we partied with TEP and had a great time, from what we remember of the night!! Obo's on the rampage again, right Scrappy?? The entertainment of the night was Chris telling everyone what his favorite part of pledging was. Blu-Lite definitely got into the spirit of the party, dancing up a storm. How she ever managed to go the whole night without her lipstick is something we'll never be able to figure out!! Coach - try to keep your keys out the toilet next time, that's not where they belong!! Lib - is the laundry basket a comfortable place to hang out in?? Elmer, have a little trouble keeping your punch in the cup??

Not to mention any names, but to those of you who were making death threats after last week's news - CALM DOWN!! And Lib, you better make it a good one next week, because this is the only chance you'll get for revenge!!

P.S. - Bets are now being taken for Tow-er and her ex, will they get back together again???

AΦK

Well, well, well. Our seven wonders of the world have been sworn in and stand tall (most of them) as: Trooper, Wheezy, Sybill, Pidge, Evi, Casey, and Opus. Kara C. was voted Best Pledge; Ann was Most Improved Pledge; and Kara T. was most Spirited Pledge. Congrats and love those Snake Bites - thanks Seniors!

We all managed to be model examples for the Drug and Alcohol convention members who were strategically placed across the hall from us at the Falmouth Sheraton. Our dates were not afraid, however, and brought their CUPS to the pool for a key blast. Who said we had alcohol...did she taste our drinks?

Some dates watched Flicks and 3-D movies in the hazy darkness of the afternoon. Everyone else spent the day eating pizza, but could have had it for free if Hep ordered it!

Dinner was great, but Sue R. -- they have dishwashers for butter knives, you know. Kim D. was pretty excited that the bathroom sold bras for a quarter, thanks to Janice, but for some strange reason she preferred to wear it OVER her dress. Kim is also the same person who got lost in the closet, but don't feel bad, Jen managed to forget Moe's face!

There were plenty of fashions by Shannan on the loose, and Kris' bandage from the APK Hospital was mighty spiffy too. Kari sported complimentary shower caps and thrilled us all with her imitation of Patty P.N.S. and slinging drinks and fists was the fashionably attired bartender in Rip-wear by KT.

As for sleeping arrangements, I've been informed that Kristin finds it comfortable to snooze under a Rock and Kara C. and Dave should use the room, considering that's why it's there. Heidi, we all applaud you for improving KT relations, but I don't know how much POWER they have. Then again, you probably do.

Sunday morning began early when the fire alarm forced us out of bed and into the parking lot to admire each other's bedheads. Then we attempted to resume sleeping when a pack of dogs went howling past our windows. THEN the little hockey brats raced, screaming, through our halls to add to our listening pleasure. THEN we discovered check-out was at 11:00. What a fun day.

A few questions remain upon our return: WHERE WERE Kelly and Pope? Krisburke, WHAT IS BETWEEN HIS LEGS? EXACTLY

HOW well did Tricia, Kristen, and Cindy P. BOND this weekend? Oh-and WHY did Matt and Shannan insist upon walking so fast? And, WHO will deliver our towels, Jethro, the new Steve&Steve partner? The answers to these need further deliberation...

Flashing back to pre-formal days... the P_Party was LOUD and we're curious as to why none of the seven are kleptos with a fetish for room keys. Hey Heidi and Kara, what took you so long? Say yes to mimosas and hanging out by the pond, even if it is 4 am. Sad to say, Moe and Dor were slipped mickeys. Dor, what's that under you hat? A muffin?

Happy belated B-day to Luann - glad to have you aboard the Comfort-bound train!

Welcome back to our Aussie girl! You look superb and we're psyched to party with you again!

Quote of the week "Really, I was sitting there minding my own business!" APK TOP CAT!!!

Here we are, one day away from the Blushing Brides. I don't think we can last for two nights in a row. The newcomers for the show, this will be a night that will never be forgotten.

The brothers who stayed on campus this weekend actually show Elroy drink for the first time in a while. Thursday night was a bash at Gulliver's and we own the trivia game their. We had a visit from Trout and Juice on Friday. You now know what happens when they come for a visit, nothing but trouble. After a on Friday night, many of us where hurting for Saturday. But we managed to party and have a good time. Some of us warmed up with a good shot a minute and voyaged around this dead campus.

The Some brothers went away to formals this past weekend, but who cares. Tucan, let me put my head on your shoulder at the couch. Speaking of formals, Mike Cormier said if his formal wasn't last weekend, he would have been asked to all three. So he took his second cousin. Ooops, that was supposed to be a secret.

We found out that why Cindy Ruck did not ask Iggy to the formal is because she got too close to him and noticed the bumps on his face. Stork, have a lifesaver. By the way, Theta is banned from our formal. Soooo sad. Patch, what happened to the Whalers. It feels good that the Sox are off to a bad start, so we don't hear much from P-man and Bone.

Where's Rex? He's under the desk, no he's out the window, no he's with Christopher. Jake, who's Jake. Elroy was cleaned out this weekend literally. Who let Jan in? Bone, quick run back and change.

Our soccer team is 2-0 with two impressive over the Delta connection. Will the real Delta's stand, which isn't Delta Chi. Softball is off to a slow start with a lose in their first game. It is now due or die in the double elimination tournament.

Check: Tucan
Dog: Gator

BΣO

Hi everyone! We hope that everybody had a great weekend—especially all those people who were away at formals. Those of us remaining on campus started the weekend off right with a trip to Asia for some bowling action. Once again, TK was able to stay between the lines and bring us back alive. Then we opened up our floor up to Delta and a few TEP brothers who entertained some of us for a while. Late night we all headed for Dorm 1 and dispersed for the night between Delta and TE. Meanwhile, Barb Garton was riding around in a limo and missed the main show of the concert she had set out to see.

Saturday night we headed for the townhouses and the roof seemed to be the place to be. Thanks, Wop. Speaking of Wop...he seemed to make a new friend by engaging in a beer fight with some wacko girl who seemed to annoy everybody. Maybe he just like MSU and wanted to wear the sweatshirt. Later, it was back to the floor where Buck made his appearance and mysteriously enough, our suite was rearranged for us. Delta, are you guys into interior decorating now??

Thanks to everybody who showed up at the Comfort last Wednesday night, we were able to raise a lot of money for the Christian Children's Fund.

We are having a raffle for 2 Celtics vs. Knicks tickets at Madison Square Garden on April 20th and $50 traveling money. Tickets are only on sale until Friday, April 14th, so get in touch with any sister if you are interested.

Our sisters who went to Phi Sig's formal last weekend had a great time. Nice bruise, Shannon. The nerve of an ex-girlfriend showing up out of the blue like that!!

Jolie is setting a new fashion trend these days by dressing like a bag. It's a very becoming look!!

Sisters, if an ARA man should happen to show upon our floor, just tell him that Jinx does not live here anymore!!!! And on that note... Have a good week.

See you next time.....

First, of all the Brothers would like to congratulate the new members of the E.B. Board:

President:	Curt
Ex. V.P.:	Chris
Social V.P.:	Dan
Tres:	Split
Sgt. at Arms:	Shoebagger
Rush Director:	Shrubber
Sec:	Opus
Pledgemaster:	Teddy

Also a special congrats goes to Curt for being elected V.P. of the G.L.C.

Well, another week has drifted off and what a week it was. It all started Wed. night after our dominating soccer victory of 1-0 over TKE (by coincidence the same number of points when we beat Phi Sig 7-6). The game was a costly one because of the loss of Ogre due to a racked up knee. No Card made a guest appearance in net and did a great job. After the game there was a Brother's party. And what a party it was. First of all the Brothers played a friendly game of quarters which broke out into a beer tossing brawl in which everyone was a winner. After that Shoebagger and Shrubber realized how good peanut butter and fritos tasted in a sandwich. Later that evening Norman Bates's spirit entered Curt's body as he wandered around the floor looking for his next victim. It took 10 min. for Obo to rekindle the flame between him and that healthy BSO sister.

On Friday, Happy Hour started off with another friendly game of quarters, this time ending up with many of the Brothers drifting off to BSO's floor. Saturday night Buck made a guest appearance on our floor and at the comfort. Many of the Brothers went to TEP, where Chris, Shoebagger, and Teddy did many shots. The threesome together proved how drunk Chris could get and how much of a lightweight Teddy is. SURPRISE, SURPRISE, yup you guessed it. Obo strikes again, this time at TEP's party. His training for the formal is in full swing since it is this weekend. His formal date is worried that his S _____ count is going to be low. By the way if anyone has seen a white male, 6 ft. tall with brown hair and answers to the name of Fonzy, could you please return him to our floor. Thanks. PEACE.

P.S. This Greek News almost became extinct, as Teddy raced after Shoebagger to try to beat him to the Archway. But luckily, this editor has the advantage over Teddy, because I know how to run down stairs without falling on my face.

Hey dudes! Quite a week it was. Quite a weekend it was. Quite a weekend it will be. Everyone should be getting psyched for tomorrow. And Mal didn't get a free weekend out of it. Right.

All of the fun started early in the week. Mort, how is that ravioli? Shut up Slats. Leave it to Vis and Manzy to go looking for a laundramat at 10:00 at night, in Pawtucket. "Manzy, I don't want to go in there. Those people scare me." They missed all of the fun at Breeze's outdoor dance party. Sprint Breeze, he's moving fast. Thursday night was spend everywhere. Frass, that three of hearts will get you sometime in the near future. It was rather quiet on the floor until the Guido brought everybody up. Fletch and Gouz were upset because he woke them up. Likewise, I'm sure.

The weekend was a blast for everyone. Ya-Dude hosted a party at the douse next door. Everybody got their veggies for the week. Even Whitey!!!! Ooops, We weren't supposed to mention him. As far as formals go...they went too far. Pants made a new friend. Rumor has it that there's a picture of them arm in arm. Ooooooh, cooties. Manzy and Nutty found a cool place to dance. Speaking of Nutty, he was a chimney last weekend, but his roommate just said no. But is was close. "Who is that behind that curtain?" Mort and Slats took revenge on Digger and Carl. This could be a controversial statement, so they are asked to keep the editor out of it.

In KDR sports, we beat Phi-Ep on Wednesday in the best game of the season. Nutty and Slats played awesome. Sully was a force on offense. We'll let you know the outcome of Tuesday's final against Phi-Sig. In swimming, Frass decided that 3:00 am would be the best time to go, unfortunately the manager didn't take too kind to that.

Whimp of the week goes to Rock. My shoulders are killing me. As for Rock, what was once lost was found and it has been lost again.

Till next time, Coop

K T

What a rockin' week-end, right Kristen? The KT-APK formal rolled into Cape Cod and created some havoc to say the least. Friday night Stevie thought he was out on the soccer field and - smash. Bugg received quite a surprise on Saturday when the alumni showed up - being plowed over by Kenny and Scott. Saturday came and the alumni stopped for a visit. It's always good to see the alumni, just APK ask or Hedi Lallo. Hey Kim D. shovel any coal lately?? and did the soot stain your dress? It is a good thing she kept the furnace burning because boy was there winter weather outside. It snowed on and off Friday to Sunday. As one alumni put it "There's Vail, there's Denver and then there's A.J.". When Rock showed up after being Wienered, the partying or should I say the fighting began, Kenny and the bartender, Smelly and Rock, Smelly and Brenden, Smelly and Rock. It was a good thing that Craig "The Great Arbitrator" was there to mediate all of the fights otherwise I think they really would have gotten out of hand. Rock had his beer muscles on and did he ever impress Kristen on and off the dance floor. Rock if only we had a camera to take a picture of you when you were in your fight ing mood. On Monday morning Gruver received a call from Solid Gold wanting to give him a try out. The management must have called the program to let them know what a great dancer he was. Then again I guess the management called a few people. It looks as though Gruver is going for a record for consecutive dates making it past the mall on the way to the formal. Although this is hard to believe but Bugg wasn't all that bad this past week-end. I'm sorry, but there are no Bugghead stories to tell this week. Leighton and Help well what can I say about those two that hasn't already been said. They were there and they drank, danced, drank, yelled and drank. Truly two unbelievable partiers of our time. Mike, Mike, Mike, Mike. I have seen you drunk before but I didn't think you were going to make it there for a while. Thank God for the walk in that it calmed Rock down, yea right. Chris owes Freeman his life after being saved from the alumni. Speaking of Freeman maybe if he didn't screw over Jeff, Maybe Jeff would not have called the cops and let them know that there would be a car speeding all the way home, and maybe he would not have received that $120 fine. I believe Chris, Babyface, and Craig owe Brenden from TKE and apology for flipping his bed on him, but then again seeing as how high he went and that one of his own brothers set him up maybe there won't be an apology.

From now on just call Bugg - Lenny as in Lenny from Of Mice and Men, because he doesn't know how to pick up a small, cute, harmless, defenseless, mouse without squeezing its guts out.

KT soccer looks like they could be in contention for the league title with a 3-0 record and strong boots from Steve, Tom, Dave, Brent and the rest of the team is leading the way. Big BIG, BIG news KT softball has finally won a game after 3 years of bowing out in 2 games the Loading Zone behind the arm of Freeman squeaked out a victory over the favorite and extremely strong TKE team 12-13. Babyface says he lead the way, but we all know it was coach Rock's tactics and his magic that pulled the team to victory.

KT TOP DOG

Here we go brothers, two weeks review of the greek news, due to the fact that for some unknown reason last weeks news mysteriously vanished!!

The Brothers last week kicked off (how is should have) with Doctor H.L.W. Leary's presentation of the first annual senior gift. The signs of Spring are upon us. The BIIIIG boiler room explosion, on last Tuesday, forced the brothers to study outside in the sunshine. Yeah... we got a lot done!

"I know a girl who's name is Sandy....candy!!!! Poor, poor Guipe it's not easy living on the floor. Run away, Run away!!!

The traditional fifth floor was passed down from Large Marge to Nipps. Congratulations Nuzz and his faithful companions Shiner and Rapper for throwing your first successful on (Even though you lost money). But, without it we never would have learned the new Fraternity song, "Joy to the world"!! And speaking of BEWARE of Brothers in Closets, now you must BEWARE of Buckey under beds. Timmy - Mckensie sac drag??? What the...

Last Friday the Sibbies invaded the floor (once again) with their wonderfully tasting punch?!?!? Thank God for Nuzz's store. Then it was Ho-Ho's or bust. "I'm not paying an extra two dollars, I didn't order therice" - negative nice brothers. Marge became brokenhoof. (Goldstein can't you watch where you stepping, you never learn!) And finally, What the missed ...the cat litter box. Dumb Haji!!

Last Saturday was a big, BIG hangover day, and the week rounded out with another awesome gig at the top floor of dorm 2. Did Jay scoop Carry or did Carry scoop Jay???

In the world of sports the A-team said "See Ya" to the regular season with three big wins over Phi-Sig, TE, and Delta. We entered the playoffs undefeated! And (of course) the Ssssss team lost again.

Watch out for flying water balloons!!!!

p.s. Scholars meeting in Colins room - 6:30 tonight!!

... And now presenting the news that should have been presented by itself this week.....

The brothers of Phi-Epsilon-Pi hope Sibbies (The new Phi-Ep polar bear club consists of Rapper, Merve, and Phiii!!!, Scooter and Taz became roommates-they were happier with each other than their dates, Shelly raped Big Nuts - bet your chick was happy about that one, J.P. and Pockets took a horror golf cart ride-where was your date at that time?, and sorry Tracey that Darren your love bunny Ruined your formal!), Theta (ALL the brothers did there was Drank and Drank and stayed up all night long for some bizzare reason), APK & KT (Hagi can't you ever find a room 0 why of all places the sawdust/cement closet) all had awesome formals!! Who won the bucket award??

But for those of us - the nine wayward brothers - who stayed home were here to see the animal farm that was up and Milo and the Kid pulled the old swithceroo. Marge was throwing blenders around and Schrader was relieved - but not where he should have been. Marge once again became broken hoof as he was sucked up by the Earth while he and scoop were inventing the front nine folf course - now we not only have the of - course but we also have the inter-...

P.S. Ron or Bust - Ron and Gina

The brothers yet made it through another booze-fested weekend spent at Woody Mt. Contrary to popular belief, everyone ended up with a date. Greg Burt made Phi Sig's record books by getting a _____ just fifteen minutes before departure. Singer was his normal "nice guy" this weekend. He only had one mood swing. As a result, Shannon has a black eye (not a verbal one). Other than that, he was a gentleman. Woody decided to come out of hibernation Saturday night for the dinner. Thanks

Woody, we're glad you did. Figure this out. Bowie goes away with a girl that has a good personality, pretty good looks, she likes to do the "wild thing", and she has Money. Yet, still Bowie decides he doesn't like her. What actually do you like Bowie? ... Probably Burns (Burns get a twinkle in his eye as he reads this). Vic had to go back home to Tijuana over the weekend. The Authorities asked him for his green card but he didn't have it. He tried to worm out of it. The Officer's response was "Sure your italian." We had elections last week. Greg Bert is our Pres, Helmit is now VP, Singer's resigning as treasurer, and the humble and slim John Peters will do a great job as Secretary. In Phi Sig sports, The hoop team hopes to do well in the finals. By the way, during the regular season, we wailed on Delta and hope to crush them in softball.

The formal was an intense success, many thanks go to Clover and Fribble. (Clover next time your going to cry, remind us not to have a formal!!!!!!) In the mean time, Casper got ALL her favorites - raisins, potatoes, mud pie, men in suits, and Dewey's muffin. I think it was the muffin that did her in, huh Burly? Good think this is Dewey's last or else she'd have to find a new date. By the way, did you find your date Friday nite Dewey? Saturday nite, dinner was scrumptious. It's always better going down than up - right Bob? "Good morning McFoster! Yes we did have the formal, and everyone had a blast... yep, you did too!" Hey Elan, next time bring your own credit card... Malibu, really it's okay - no one (not even Havoc) saw you in that Porsche after the formal... "Gonna be some squeak sounds coming down on the night shift..." Gidget, do you and Havoc consider 5am the night?... Speaking of credit cards, Skyler, Ferris said it WAS thunder.

Lacey, WHO WAS THAT MAN you were with Saturday nite? You've got to have him around more often, he does a grat Stevie Wonder impersonation. NICE MOVES, GEORGE!! Hey Spritz, speaking of moves, we would sign up for "Grounds' WE CAN MOW!!!

For the most part, out dates conducted themselves in a very orderly fashion during the formal. (Can't say much for before, right Frib?) Next year you and I will get a CASE of champagne... Thanks for a really great formal, sisters!!! Thank you for coming Jane and Dr. H, we hope you had a good time. Welcome back Giz! We missed you...

SIB Geek

P.S. Nice date Ferris, you didn't tell us your date was John Travolta. And Casper - it's okay Dewey didn't want that muffin anyways ...

Hello everyone! Hope everyone had a great weekend, ours lasted a full five days. Cahoon proved to be an excellent Social Chair Wednesday nite. Once the refreshments FINALLY arrived they only lasted until 11:00. Our Sisters party was an absolute blast, despite several graceful dives by a few seniors, a good time was had by all. Daryl and Casey showed how close they really are as roommates with their synchronized dancing. A spot on Dance Fever seems to be the next logical step in your careers. Danglez's trip South-of-the-Boarder ended tragically with her own version of Montezuma's Revenge.

The Seniors departed Thursday for Hyannis and most of them seem to have developed partial cases of amnesia, I wonder why?! Sav, how long have you been going out with your date? Some people seem to think there's a future for the two of you. There are closet eaters, closet gays, and closet drinkers. Well, Theta has its own Closet Smokers, literally. Galgano and Tyrone, did you even know where you were?! Sheri and Stephen, were you really doing dishes?

Friday, when the rest of us arrived, we began what was to be the first of two very long nights. Hotel security proved to be very competent, it was so tight some of us couldn't even get into our rooms. Panic struck Rm. 202 when three of the Hotel's finest decided to host a stake-out outside the door. The Hyannis Police Station seemed a little too close for comfort. Thanx to Quigs and Calli, the paranoia is only now beginning to wear off. The Fifties Party was a blast that nite. Tina's fruit punch packed quite a punch, at that. Patches and Erich were the dirty dancing couple for the evening— we didn't know you could move like that. Speaking of dancing, Angela, McQ, and Hoochie invented their own dance move, "floor butt dancing", it could easily be the new rage. Sorry Boof, I don't think you'll start a trend with shower caps this season. Jean, really, there is nothing hysterical about can of tomatoes. Christina, what would it be?! NOT 1-4-3!?!!

Poolside Saturday, for those who made it, was interesting, to say the least. Marblz and Wattz found out the hard way that bathing suits are proper attire, but don't worry, it'll dry. Once again the "Bretheren" lost to Theta. Why ever try? You're going to lose! The K— Fiasco added an interesting twist to the day. Who bought the other @#!$# thing and who tapped it anyway????!!

Sat. nites slide show was really great, thanks for the memories Beckles. Then everything went black...

Webster?? Webster??? Sorry, she passed out. After that "surprise" from Tina, it was all over. That's two years in a row—this tradition has got to stop! Thanx Rockin' for stepping in and being Pseudo Date. Rosie ever so graciously accepted her well earned and well deserved Bounty Award and Strykr received H.A. (Nicole, had you not missed that week during pledging...) Just Joanie received Klutz, and by the way, we'd like to hear about how you acquired those strange red markings. People are still wondering why the seniors were trying to wave down their food with their napkins! New Sisters were spared from Final Phase—but don't think we've forgotten it! Don't forget to bring your buckets next time—it's _____ even more when you're sober. It was great to see Alumni there as well as Kay and her husband. Thanks for all you support, we love you guys!!! All in all, Tina, you did one Hell of a job, but aren't you glad it's over??

CONGRATULATIONS to Miss Gorry's Inchoiring Minds who were finally installed as New Sisters. Tell me, do you love you P.M.? Also congratulations and best of luck to Heidi, out new pledgedmistress, let's carry on the winning tradition!!! Also Sandy, who's now Rush Chair, you'll do a great job!

On a final note: Christine is coming back!! Only without the excess Baggage!

P.S. It's been decided that the biggest gossip goes to Phi Ep.

P.P.S. Hope everyone has fun at their formals this weekend - - except you, Ben, of course.

Hola eager readers, I'm sorry to say but, well, this is all folks, my last entry. TJ is going to take over the power of the pen. He should have plenty to write about after we come back from our formal. At the time this is written 1:00 A.M. Monday the 10th, four brothers do not have formal dates. But I'm sure this problem will be taken care of when this issue hits the stands.

Friday night was out of hand as I came back to find Bob, Pee-Wee, and Bubba out of their tree. Bubba apologizes to anyone he offended. Gumba ate two whole subs and will have to do extra exercises to keep from getting "fa_ ", can you fill in the blank!? Bill and McKay had a wonderful display of suite wrestling but Bill was overtaken by a seemingly possessed "Purple Haze". Thanks for the late night pizza Haze. I hope the paddles are coming along fine, if not you have 24 hours to finish. Bubba-someone's mother out there is probably quite offended, find her and apologize.

Otis, Bill, Pee-Wee, Flash, Bubba and I tried twelve acres. We the critics that we are give it a thumbs down, poor service and crabby waitresses, good fries though. Flash don't play with you food, Pee-Wee will get excited!

Saturday nights party with Alpha Phi was a great time for all in attendance. Congratulations to the people who created that batch of super punch, it ranks among the top three of all time. Andy's ideas were definitely not clear in his head and many brothers suggested "sitting" after he performed the body drop on the dance floor. However, Bryan's ideas were quite clear as he helped film the new version of Dirty Dancing. We would like to thank Chris from Delta for policing our bathroom, checks the mail. Ian and Lon-Boy played their traditional game of b_rgammon, and tended the bar well. Ian-"Were was your sign?" Pee WEE was a little late on his choices, not much time left! Cujo did a fine job with the music too! Scott has an awesome stereo if anyone wants to see it, that's the best I've heard in a while!!

All brothers who attended formals said it was great from what they remember. Pope had to resort to room service for dinner on Friday or he would go hungry-bow-bow-bow! Stone got plenty of sleep so he should be raring to go for our formal, right buddy!

Binkley has new nerd glasses, Check em out!

The Ralph Cramdon award goes to Pee-Wee for his triple. LBA this week goes to Zone, for never having more than two in one night all semester and still being messed up!!

Joke of the week - What do you call a Phillipine contortionist?

Ans. - A Manila folder.

Sorry Zone, but it was too good.

Later JD

Good luck writing Maverick!

Life goes on pretty fast. If you don't slow down and look around once in a while, it might just pass you by. So, with this being my final edition, lets look back over the past school year. A greek new's greatest hits, so to speak.

It started out great from the hour we got here, and went on to include: lofi mania, Pumpkinsteil, the Lost General, Ipsps with wirecutters, the Hi Joys, Lou and Mellow's trip to Boston before the smoker, Furniture Mountain, Splinter's splint, the third suite snake, the ARA strike, Weirido, The Southern Seven, Hepencrutch, Greek Olympics, Fenway road trip, The Beast, Steak and 'brau, Pinky the lumberjack, Monstah Omelettes, man of whiteness, New Ron, the ditch of doom, Jerry, the Dice man, countless hums, hours of setback, Bob, confetti, Barbados, Daytona, and of course, the R.I. flag football championship on alumni weekend.

Hopefully the good times will keep on rolling.

OF THE WEEK

Pete Ojerholm

This week's Athlete of the Week is Pete Ojerholm. Pete, a junior management major from Holden, MA powered the Indians past Rhode Island College in a furious display of offensive power. In six innings, Pete had three hits, including a three-run, game winning homer, and a solo blast. The game was called in the sixth inning, giving Bryant a 5-2 victory.

Beer and Sports

Susan Torti
Archway Staff Writer

All that glitters is not gold. It could be beer, the world's oldest and most popular alcoholic refreshment. My purpose in writing this article is twofold. First to bring an increased awareness about the ancient beverage; second to show the influence that it has had on virtually every spectator sport.

It is unknown the actual time and place of the first brewery, however through translation of ancient Greek writing it is apparent that it was a beverage of the ancient Egyptians. Historically, there were traces of its existence with the Incas, Babylonians and Hebrews. Romans had their beer (cervisia) which they served in gold goblets at great feasts. It was a known favorite of Julius Caesar. Luckily the beer brewing business made it to the new world with the pioneers. Famous Quaker, William Penn, was of Dutch descent and the founder of Pennsylvania. Penn loved his beer which he brewed and sold at Pennsbury, Bucks County, PA. During the time it was a popular beverage enjoyed by many at county fairs and dances. Beer was the beverage that made people temperate and was considered through the ages as a wholesome, desired beverage.

Beer has been considered a necessity in all generations, and only recently in the nineteenth century have extremists arisen to condemn its use. In fact the best beer through the ages was brewed by the Franciscan and Dominican monks with the sole purpose being to cheer the hearts of the toiling clergymen.

The beer industry has evolved into a multi-billion dollar industry. To date there are more than 20,000 different kinds of beer brewed all over the world. No matter how you look at it, beer and sports has been the American way since before it's over-zealous marketing began in the 1950's. Every type of sport is bombarded with beer logo contraband. As the number one corporate team sponsor and media advertiser, it has brought the fans and sports to new heights.

Although beer has a calming effect when consumed in moderate amounts, there is no guarantee that moderate amounts will be consumed unless regulations are initiated. Excessive beer drinking at sporting events has recently been the culprit of many violent outbreaks by fans. Most recently last April 30 in Cincinnati, 41,032 fans trashed Riverfront Stadium and forced the umpire off the field. This was not the first of unsportsmanlike conduct. It is likely that upon attending an event, you will be confronted by unruly, sloppy fans because of over indulgences. Promoters have come to realize that this takes away from the enjoyment of the sport. It heightens the anxiety of many people who go for a family outing with young children and thus causes a decrease in ticket sales in the long run.

There is uncontrollable energy generated from a sporting event by fans and players. There is nothing like witnessing a knockout punch, catching a fly ball, or seeing the winner of a marathon cross the finish line. What is not worth viewing is a fight among rowdy, intoxicated fans or being trampled in a riot. Recent changes have occurred to decrease the beer consumption and thus increase the pleasure of attending sporting events. Several stadiums have stopped the seat vending of beer and have blocked off areas where beer will not be allowed. There have been good results from these actions. Many fans approved and food sales increased, although beer sales went down.

The beer advertisers realize their responsibility to the public welfare and several have even promoted moderation. For example, Spuds McKenzie is setting the example to party smart in recent television commercials. Going to a sporting event can be expensive but nothing surpasses the feeling from the crowd, which is something that cannot be experienced in your living room. Its not only the sports figures and events that attracts the spectators, its the great sports fans that provide the real excitement.

Fighting in the NHL

Mike Boulet
Archway Staff Writer

The game of hockey is a very fast-paced, often frustrating game. Many times tempers flare and before the referee know it, four or five pairs of gloves have hit the ice and punches are being thrown. Fighting seems to be as much a part of the game as scoring goals is. Could this be true?

Most teams actually have a player that they call their fighter or as they are more often called, "goons." The New York Rangers have Chris Nilan, the L.A. Kings have Jay Miller, and the Toronto Maple Leafs have John Kordic, just to name a few. Do these players actually possess an ounce of real hockey skill? Many times they do, but they are rarely given a chance to prove themselves. They sit on the bench and wait for the coach to tell them to go in and mix it up, often in an attempt to break the other team's momentum.

"Goons" also exist to protect the star player of the team. When the Kings acquired Jay Miller, did they really want him because he has incredible scoring talent? No! They wanted a tough guy to protect Wayne Gretzky. This is the main purpose of a goon.

There are many players, such as Gretzky, that would love to see fighting banned from the NHL. Yet he seems to be in the minority. A majority of the fans say that they don't mind the scuffles. They tend to keep the game moving during the few moments that the action is slow. Fighting naturally results in penalties, which often creates more offense, players are very rarely hurt during fights besides an occasional bloody nose or lip.

Any way that it may be looked at, fighting will always be a controversial issue. Yet fighting has always been associated with the game, and it appears as if it always will be.

As the Sports World Turns

By BOB MATTHEWS
Gannett News Service

As The Sports World Turns:

Andrew Gaze has returned to his native Australia and is not expected to return to Seton Hall.

He spent five months at the school, just long enough to help the Pirates reach the NCAA championship game.

Syracuse coach Jim Boheim need not feel guilty if he ever decides to import a junior college hotshot to fill a specific need. Nothing could smell worse than the Gaze-Seton Hall scenario.

It is difficult to feel sorry for the Detroit Pistons and Isiah Thomas, who'll be sidelined for three weeks with a broken finger suffered in a fight last week with Chicago's Bill Cartwright.

The Pistons thrive on physical play and intimidation, and it was inevitable that an important player would be hurt in a fight. Thomas should stick to kissing Magic Johnson on the cheek rather than exchanging punches with guys a foot taller and 70 pounds heavier.

Suggested selection process for the 1992 U.S. Olympic basketball team: Five players from the NBA chosen by a panel of league coaches (no tryouts); five college players (selected in tryouts); and two more players (collegians or pros) to be chosen by the coach to fill specific needs.

Cheers to the NCAA basketball rules committee for allowing conferences to experiment with a six-personal foul limit next season. Considering the size and speed of the modern players, the proposal was long overdue.

Nominating Phoenix Suns guard Kevin Johnson as the most underrated player in the NBA. He is about to join Oscar Robertson, Magic Johnson, Nate Archibald and Isiah Thomas as the only guards to average 20 points and 10 assists in a season.

Boston's Wade Boggs is paying the price for his affair with Margo Adams. When Boggs came to the plate for the first time Friday night in Kansas City, some fans donned Margo masks distributed by a local radio station, responded with a hit. Earlier, in Baltimore, fans held up a banner saying, "Hey, Wade, we're not wearing any underwear." On a more serious note, the Red Sox received a bomb threat from Florida last week, and their flight from Baltimore to Kansas City was delayed by an extensive baggage check.

A few salaries in Japanese baseball this season: Warren Cromartie (Yomiuri Giants) $1.44 million; Willie Upshaw (Hanshin Tigers) $923,000; Larry Parrish (Yakult Swallows) $746,000; Pat Dodson (Kintetsu Buffaloes) $269,000. Dodson made around $40,000 per season in Pawtucket the past few years.

Philadelphia could make the first major trade of the baseball season.

A few possibilities:
— Von Hayes to San Diego for Sandy Alomar Jr.

— Steve Bedrosian to the Chicago Cubs for Rick Sutcliffe.

— Hayes or Bedrosian to San Francisco for Jose Uribe and a pitching prospect.

Baseball's "Team of the Decade" by the Los Angeles Daily News: 1B-Eddie Murray; 2B-Ryne Sandberg; SS-Ozzie Smith; 3B-Mike Schmidt; C-Gary Carter; LF-Rickey Henderson; CF-Dale Murphy; RF-Dave Winfield; DH-Don Baylor; RHP-Jack Morris (Dan Quisenberry relief); LHP-Fernando Valenzuela (Dave Righetti relief); Manager Sparky Anderson. Not bad, but I'd prefer Don Mattingly at 1B.

Cal Ripken Jr. at SS, Jim Rice at DH, and Tommy Lasorda as manager.

Phil Esposito could be job hunting soon. The Rangers were 0-6 after he replaced Michel Bergeron as coach, and the New York media is touting TV color analyst John Davidson as a possible successor.

Tom Barrasso had a strong series in Pittsburgh's playoff sweep of the Rangers, but his regular-season performance line was nothing special: Buffalo, 10 games, 2-7 record, 4.95 goals-against average; Pittsburgh, 44 games, 18-15-7, 4.04 GAA. Daren Puppa's line with the Sabres: 37 games, 17-10-6, 3.36; Jacques Cloutier's line with the Sabres: 36 games, 15-15-7, 3.63 GAA. Conclusion: Trading Barrasso to the Penguins wasn't a bad move by Buffalo.

Considering the proliferation of made-for-closed-circuit TV, Senior Boxing Tour matches in recent months, who can blame Aaron Pryor for wanting to take on Hector "Macho" Camacho in his next fight? Pryor can't have many fights left in him, and the quicker he gets his million-dollar bout, the better.

Keeping things in perspective, I hope Jack Kemp never quits his job as secretary of Housing and Urban Development in favor of becoming commissioner of the National Football League.

The First Annual U.B. Used Awards

Mark Plihcik
Archway Staff Writer

You've probably just about had it with awards. The Grammys, the Tony's, the American Music Awards have all passed by us in the past couple of months. But there is one more prestigious group of awards left to be given. Introducing the annual U.B. Used Awards for Athletic Excellence. So without further adieu, here we go!

The Sports Couple of the Year Award: I mentioned this in passing last week, but I think that it deserves to be noted again. This year's award goes to President George Bush and singer Joan Jet. Bush threw out the first ball at the opening day game at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore when the Orioles played the Red Sox, and Jet sang the national anthem. What a couple!

Medicinal Discovery of the Year: Wade Boggs for his startling discovery of a new addiction that could explain conditions that had previously baffled scientists. In a revealing interview with WNEV TV in Boston, Boggs stated that he was a sex addict, thus becoming the first reported case of addiction to a non-tangible substance.

Coach of the Year: There is little doubt in my mind who will get this one. There are, however, two recipients of this award this year. First to Joe Morgan, manager of the Red Sox. Morgan took a team that was flirting with .500 when he took over and turned them into the American League East champions with a brand of baseball coined "Morgan's Magic." The second award will go to Bryant Women's Basketball coach Ralph Tomasso, who led his lady Indians to the NE-10 conference championship, knocking off Bentley in the final. The Indians didn't have quite enough to get past a tough New Haven team in the first round of the NCAA regionals.

The 'We knew it would happen sooner or later' award: This has to go to the Boston Celtics, who after nearly a decade of dominating the top of the Eastern Conference standings in the NBA have slipped to third. We saw it coming when they lost to LA in 1987 in the final and Detroit last year in the East final, but we wouldn't believe our Celts could fall. But with the injury to Larry Bird, it has finally happened.

The 'Welcome to the Big Time' Award: The Detroit Pistons have finally come into their own after years of playing second fiddle to the Celtics. And they're definitely here to stay.

The 'Who the Hell is that Playing in the Final Four?' award: Seton Hall, no doubt and no questions asked.

The 'Why are we playing in the Big East?' award: Boston College. This team hasn't missed the play down game of the Big East in years, and without Dana Barrows next year, they have no hope of coming out of the cellar next year.

The 'Where do we go from here?' award: Oakland Athletics. After crushing all competition in the AL West and annihilating the Red Sox in four games, the only thing the A's have left to do is win the World Series. That should come this season.

The 'I just jumped off the boat and can't sing the national anthem' award: To the ditz (I can't even remember her name, nor do I want to!) that was asked to sing the national anthem before a Yankees game last season. After singing the first few lines out of key, she proceeded to mangle the remainder of the song before, thankfully for the live audience and all of those unfortunate enough to be watching the game on the Sports Channel, leaving the field in a shower of boos and mad hysterics from the fans.

That about does it for the first annual U.B. Used awards. See you here next year, same place, same time!
